BOGLE'S HYPERION FLUID! THE HAIR!

THE GREAT PRESERVATIVE OF THE AGE! NO HOME in the Troples should be without Bo-Prof. Anderson, in 1855, Pronounced it to be the Saver of his Hair !

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATER, STRAND, LONDON, ! Saturday, Aug. 25th. .855. It affords me very great pleasure to bear witness to the sur-rising efficacy of "Bogle's Hyperion Fluid." I had occasion to resort to it after losing so much of my hair as to be almost bald, owing to the influence of the climate, during my tour in the United States. Various much vaunted Hair Restoratives which I had already tried having entirely failed, I was advised to test the value of Mr. Bogle's preparation. I used it dili-gently for some time, when to my great gratification my hair assumed more than its former luxuriance. Hence I can—both from my own experience and that of my friends to whom I have recommended its use—most confidently advise the use of the "Hyperion Fluid" to all who need the use of that which shall restore, nourish, and beautify their hair. For these purposes, I am certain that it is unsurpassed and unsurpassable.

JOHN HENRY ANDERSON.

To the Public of Honolulu.

The Agent of Bogle's Hyperion Fluid having called on me when I arrived here, I was delighted to find my old friend had preceded me (I mean Begle's Fluid.) My hair was falling off in thousands per day; a short interview with my friend has stoped the fall; a few smart rubbing operations, performed by "VOELKER," has made every hair as tast as the Hawaiian on my Magic Chair. 1. in 1859, in Honolulu, recommend it to the world as the Great Hair Preserver.

Its unparalleled superiority consists in, 1-t, The ingredients are nourishing to the hair, not destructive, as others are. 2d, Does not hurt or stain the skin. 3d, Is easily applied, and dyes the hair any color required from a easily applied, and dyes the hair any color required. HAWAHAN LEGISLATURE, 1860. HOUSE OF NOBLES.

FORTY-NINTH DAY, August 6.- The bill on the estates of deceased persons was reported back by the committee without amendment, and on motion of Mr. Gregg, laid on the table.

The bill to further protect Diplomatic Agents of foreign friendly Powers, was reported by Mr. Wyllie as chairman of the committee to which it had been refer-

Mr. Hopkins, for the reasons which he gave on a fermer occasion, when this bill was before the House, moved its indefinite postponement.

Mr. Gregg objected to the motion, and said: That as he had not taken occasion to express his views in regard to the bill when it was first under discussion, he would now do so in the briefest possible manner. If it contained, as had been alleged, any restriction upon the liberty of the Press, as guaranteed by the Constitution, he was so far opposed to it. But he did not understand it in such a sense. From the explanations of its mover, and from his own recollections, he was satisfied that it was merely a transcript from the legislation of the United States and Great Britain on the same subject—in fact, nothing more than an affirmation of the law of nations. If so, there need be no great degree of hesitation in standing upon the same ground which the greatest and most enlightened countries are willing to occupy. The representatives of foreign nations were under the protection of international law, and we could not derognte from their privileges, but at the same time, we owed it to ourselves to so regulate our legislation as to show to the world that we were not unmindful of or indisposed to conform to the usages which civilization everywhere demanded.

Mr. Wyllie, after Mr. Gregg, spoke on the second reading of the Act for the better protection of the Diplomatic Agents of foreign countries: He said that his worthy colleague the Minister of Finance, took the correct view of the Act; that it was framed in the main, word for word, upon an Act of the American Congress, and that the few words interpolated were but in accordance with the provis-ion both of American and British law. He, Mr. Wyllie, franky admitted that these laws were not always enforced, as could be seen by American and English newspapers received by every mail. But those g at and civilized governments had have to meet all the comp into that Diplomatic Agents could make, which those governments could enforce when they pleased, and it appeared to him (Mr. Wyllie) that we were not in that position, either by our Constitution or our laws. Now, he heartily concurred in the view expressed by Mr. Gregg, that it could not be derogatory to the King's Government, in its respect to the representatives of foreign States, to follow the example of such governments as Great Britain and the United States.

governments as Great Britain and the United States.

Our Sovereign was a most courteous, polite and accomplished gentleman; it was the duty of the King's Ministers to take their rule from the Throne, and to be equally courteous to the representatives of foreign nations who surrounded the Throne in honor of him who sits upon it, and as the exponents of the friendly feelings of their own Sovereigns towards this Government.

Of all nations, France had the most stringent laws for the protection of foreign Sovereigns and Diplomatic Agents. M. Perrin has asked for nothing here that French law would not readily grant to an Agent of the King, of the same rank, in Paris. It is true, the laws of France have no force here, no more than our is true, the laws of France have no force here, no more than our laws have force in France; but the rules and usages of international courtesy between civilized nations had the force of example with all States that claim to be reputed as civilized. He, Mr. Wyllie, would be sorry that this Act should be defeated by any hostile personal feeling. He himself had great respect for Mr. Perrin, for he had many private virtues. Although on for Mr. Perrin, for he had many private virtues. Although on political questions Mr. Perrin and he often differed widely as the poles, (as would be seen by the Protocols), that was what each had a right to do, under his responsibility to his own Sovereign and his belief as to what was just and proper. In those respects, he could no more dictate to Mr. Perrin than Mr. Perrin could dictate to him, Mr. Wyllie. The most sincere friendship and the greatest mutual respect were perfectly compatible with the most complete antogonism of political opinions. That was precisely the case between him and the representative of France, so far the case between him and the representative of France, so far as his own feelings were concerned.

Respect to him, in his representative capacity, was really respect to the Emperor, whose policy he, Mr. Wyllie, believed to be eminently friendly to the King's independence. It was a great mistake to suppose that of all foreign represen-tatives that of France was the only one who had complained of disrespect and a want of proper protection. It was only the other day that the honorable representative of another great and friendly Power had stated to him (Mr. Wyllie), that there was a general belief that the King's officers were systematically wanting in courtesy to all foreign representatives and consuls, and that his Majesty's Government had a duty to perform to them under international law, with which our local laws ought to be in harmony. Mr. Armstrong knew who it was, for he had The question had been put to him by several gentlemen whom he respected, why it was, if the French Government had disapproved of the acts of Mr. Dillon and Admiral de Tromelin in 849, Mr. Perrin had never so declared to Mr. Wyllie To this he would reply, that it is not competent for him to answer for the representative of France, who might have contrary information or reasons for his reserve; but if any one doubts the perfect truth of what he, Mr. Wyllie, declared on a former occa-sion in this House, he will cheerfully submit to the whole House, or to a committee thereof, two communications of 7th and 8th June, 1850, laid confidentially before the King and Council on the 2d September of that year, and two official despatches of 14th and 24th March, 1860, authorizing him to use officially the proofs of the fact that they, the above named Agents, had been censured by their own Government for their acts in this city in 1849.

In knowledge of that fact and of others, he (Mr. Wylie) had declared, both to the King's Government and to foreign Diplo-matists and naval officers (some of whom believed the contrary), that the policy of the Imperial Government of France was as friendly to the independence of our Sovereign and to the welfare of the Hawaiian people, as that of Queen Victoria or the President of the United States, and he (Mr. Wyllie) continues in that

Mr. Hopkins disclaimed any personal feeling in his pposition to this bill. Mr. Wyllie added, that no one connected with the Government was less biassed by personal antipathies than Mr. Hopkins, and that to no one had he more frequently mentioned this honorable fact than to the French Commissioner himself.

The bill was indefinitely postponed. The Opium bill was received from the House of Representatives as amended by them, providing for the sale of the licenses at public auction at the upset price of $2000. The amendment was concurred in, and the bill ordered to be engrossed. A bill was received from the Representatives to amend section 135 of the Civil Code. Referred to a select committee, consisting of Messrs. Ii and Armstrong. Adjourned to Wednesday. . . The Nobles met on Wednesday and Thursday, the Fiftieth and Fifty-First Days, but on account of so many members being absent on the Committee on the Appropriation Bill, no business was transacted.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES. SIXTY-THIRD DAY, Aug. 4th.-The House received notice from the Nobles that their bill to reduce the postage on newspapers and magazines received in packages had been indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Kaulia read first time his bill to amend the stallion law, providing that stallions may run free till 18 A GENT FOR JAMES CONNER & SONS, U. S.
Type Foundry, and Dealers in all kinds of Printing Materials.
Printers will find it to their advantage to call on us beto the informant.

Mr. Green moved to reject. Mr. Kailihau supported the bill; he said that in his district of Puna, Hawaii, horses were not so plenty as they are in Honolulu, and it was desirable to give facilities to increase them. Messrs. Kaulia and Kaaukai followed in support of the bill. Rejected by 13 to 11.

Mr. Webster read first time a bill granting a right of way, along a certain course, to the Minister of the Interior for the new water works. Ordered translated. Mr. Mahoe read a second time his bill to pay members of the House of Nobles at same rate as Representatives. The preamble recites that, whereas it appears that certain members of the House of Nobles in constant attendance, were unable without pay to keep up the dignity of Nobles, &c. On motion of Mr. Widemann it was postponed indefinitely.

The House in Committee, took up an Act to amend the adultery laws-the amendment, by adding five days imprisonment at hard labor to the fines. Mr. Kamaknu moved to lay on the table. He said that it would be useless to attempt to suppress the offense by making the penalties more stringent. Mr. Naispaakai said, that unless we had a law which inflicted a punishment that unless we had a law which inflicted a punishment that would be dreaded, and that would bear upon the rich as well as the poor, we had better have none at all. He approved of this amendment, which imposed the disgrace by imprisonment on all, without alternative of paying in money. Mr. Dowsett expressed his views as in a former discussion of this bill (see report of 59th day), that the remedy proposed proceeded upon wrong principles, and was impracticable. Messra. Widemann and Chamberlayne concurred.

Mr. Green contra. Bill laid on table and Committee rising, the House reconsidered and postponed indefinitely. Bill to amend Section 185 of the Civil Code-

Section 135. Whoever, without a license shall ship a foreign scaman, shall be subject to a fine of one hundred dollars for each offense, upon conviction thereof before a Police Justice: provided, however, that nothing in this section contained, shall be construed to forbidenasters of vessels to ship scamen for their own vessels, without the intervention of a shipping master. -by adding that, in order to establish the offence conNo. 15.

templated in this section it shall be necessary only to prove that the party has shipped a seaman for a beneficial consideration, though he may not have taken a security or shipping fee co nomine, was taken up in

Sixty-fourth Day, Aug. 6th.—Being Monday, peti-tions were received as follows: By Mr. Kasukai, from Hamakua, for a pound in that district. The member had leave to withdraw the same. The same gentleman presented a petition, 46 names, to increase the fine upon unmarried women becoming pregnant. Tabled on motion of Mr. Naiapaakai. Mr. Widemann, from select Committee on the "Names bill" from the Nobles, reported a substitute (for pro-visions of which see our report of 66th day). Ordered to be translated. The business of the day being taken up in Committee of the Whole, the bill amending the law relating to En-glish and domestic boarding schools was considered and

Mr. Widemann reported the bill giving relief to cer-tain konohikis who had made application for their lands, but not perfected their claims in time of the Land Commission, and giving them two years more to take out their titles. The same being considered in Committee of the House, was passed. The House adjourned before 12 M.

SIXTY-FIFTH DAY, Aug. 7th .- Mr. Green read first time his bill to admit duty free all religious books and tracts, and the materials for such to be manufactured here, for circulation among natives or foreigners, and all articles imported for family support, the same not being designed for trade, but for the personal support of Ministers and teachers, and their families. Mr. Naiapaakai moved to reject; Messrs. Ukeke, Freen, Kailihou favored the bill. Mr. Naiapaakai said the missionaries had already received a great many privileges and immunities. Their land had been either given to them or sold at greatly reduced prices. Mr. Baldwin said that all the bibles and books for the Mission had hitherto been printed at the Mission press, that had been sold, and the printing was done by the American Tract Society at cost prices. He considered that the Government ought not to impose duties on them.

Mr. Widemann commented on the provision of the bill to admit all articles imported for family use of missionaries. Where would that end. He knew of people trading upon the stock thus introduced duty free, as the law was previous to the Civil Code.

Mr. Mahoe concurred with the views of Mr. Naiapaakai. Mr. Kipi favored the bill, speaking only of books for gratuitous distribution ; it was impartial ; it did not specify any denominational or sectarian books-all religious books. Mr. Widemann said that in regard to the debt which this nation owed for its civilization and christianity, it was repaying by contributing to the promotion of the same cause in other islands of the Pacific. It was not to be repaid by returning the money advanced. Mr. Green asked leave to withdraw his bill. Mr. Webster read second time his bill granting right of way.

Mr. Widemann read second time the "Names bill" (Nobles) as reported amended by select Committee of the Representatives. In Committee of the Whole was passed the act amend-ing the Penal Code, Chapter 42, authorizing the summary seizure of illicit stills, liquor, &c.; the Honolulu Water Works Right of Way Bill was passed. There was some apprehension, chiefly expressed by Mr. Nainpuakai, lest some native should lose his cherished kalo patch, but by judicious explanation, all doubts were successfully removed The act to amend Chapter 7 of the Penal Code, relating to drunkenness, in the English version, suthorizing imprisonment "at hard labor" in incorrigible cases, &c. SIXTY-SIXTH DAY, Aug. 8th .- Mr. Webster reported the Banking Bill from select Committee, with the foilowing amendments to the bill, as submitted from Messrs. Bishop & Co: Bishop & Co. not to assign their privileges without consent of Privy Council; to deposite not less than $20,000 in Exchequer bills with the Gov-ernment; to keep no less than the above amount on deposite, the same to bear interest not to exceed eight per cent. per annum ; their bank-bills not made "legal ender," but receivable by Government for Government dues; the Government not to be responsible for the redemption of the bills, only for the safe keeping of the securities deposited with them. Refusal to redeem their notes to the amount of four hundred dollars presented by any holder to work insolvency. The bill, with these amendments, was ordered for tomorrow. Mr. Widemann reported on the bill for protection of places of sepulchre, recommending to amend " authorized by law" to remove remains, &c., to "have a right ' Mr. Naiapaakai introduced a bill to amend the twenty-third Chapter of the Civil Code, by restoring the office of Attorney General of the Kingdom, the said Attorney General to perform also the duties of the District Attorney of Oahu, at the same salary.

Committee. In Committee of the House the act to prevent married people deserting each other was taken up. Objections were taken to the present form of the bill and it was recommended to be recommitted. The " Proper Names bill " of the Nobles, as re-

Passed to its second reading and referred to a select drafted by the House Committee, was then taken up and passed. It provides that all married women shall adopt their husbands' names as a family name. All children born in lawful wedlock after date of this law shall take their father's name as a family name, also a Christian name suitable to their sex. Illegitimate children ditto mother's name.

All children up to twenty years of age shall adopt their father's name All names so adopted shall be reported to the census takers of the present year. It shall not be lawful to change any name adopted or conferred after passage of this law, or previous to it.

Father or mother of any child born after passage of this law shall report its name to the Registrar of births of the district. This law to take effect immediately. Mr. Knudsen moved to add a section imposing a penalty of ten dollars for failure to comply with the provisions of the law. At present the law was without sanction. Mr. Widemann was opposed to the amendment. The law should not compel the people to abandon their old names if they didn't wish it. It set forth the better practice and should leave people to follow it. Messrs. Dowsett and McCully supported this view, and the amendment was lost. SIXTY-SEVENTH DAY, Aug. 9th .- With but little preliminary business the House went into Committee upon the order of the day-the Banking Bill. Mr. Green moved to lay it on the table; Mr. Bald-win to postpone indefinitely; which motions were seconded from all sides of the House.

Mr. McCully, getting the floor, requested that the House would at least give the matter a careful consideration and not reject it without a hearing. The House had frequently spent more than one day upon some trifling claim, or crudely drawn bill ; it might do as much for this measure, which had been elaborately prepared and was exciting so much public interest. Mem-bers need not be afraid to look at it. They could vote t down to-morrow or next day, if they saw fit.

Messrs. Baldwin and Green argued that a bank was unnecessary; that it would inflate business and lead to bankruptcy: that it would draw the Government on to incur debt; that it was insecure, &c. Mr. Wide-mann said he had made careful inquiry among business result from it. The rate of interest to the Gov and to the community would be reduced-that, in fact, was one great source of the outery against the bill. It proceeded from private money lenders, who had loaned at exorbitant rates, even as high as five per cent per month. Money could be easier obtained by planters month. Money could be easier obtained by planters on long time. It would make business more lively and promote the general prosperity of the Kingdom. Public improvements would be made, and these would remain to the country, even in the event of a crisis and a failure, which seemed to be so much apprehended by some gentlemen, but on the basis proposed he did not apprehend a failure; every dollar was secured by deposit of public stocks, &c.

Mr. Chamberlayne was opposed to all banks of issue.
He had seen the evil of them. He had had a hatfull of bills that were not worth the paper they were pri on. He was a friend of a specie circulation, and

Mr. Dowsett did not like this bill on account of its
